Mike Moye Named General Counsel for Alameda Health System

Oakland, Calif. — Alameda Health System (AHS) announced today that Mike Moye has been named General Counsel. In this role, Moye will oversee all legal services and advise on health care, regulatory, strategic business planning, and complex labor and employment matters. He will also oversee collaboration with outside counsel.

“Moye is a valued member of our team, and we appreciate his commitment to the AHS mission and vision,” said Delvecchio Finley, Chief Executive Officer, Alameda Health System. “Moye has provided legal services to the AHS Board of Trustees and the Executive Leadership Team as interim General Counsel since January 2015.”

Moye’s experience includes 20 years with Bay Area law firm Hanson Bridgett LLP. As a partner at Hanson Bridgett, Mike served as Chair of the Labor and Employment Section and his practice included representation of public and private employers throughout California ranging from start-ups and non-profits to Fortune 500 companies. He established himself as an independent investigator trusted by public and private organizations to handle sensitive fact-finding and investigative matters. He also provided counseling and extensive training for employers in areas such as state and federal labor/employment laws, breach of contract, and negotiation/interpretation of collective bargaining agreements.

Moye is on the Board of Directors of the Alameda County Community Food Bank and a former member of the Oakland Museum of California Board of Trustees. He serves on the Board of Directors of the Bar Association of San Francisco, and the Executive Committee of the Bar Association of San Francisco, Labor and Employment Law Section. Moye received his J.D. from the University of California, Los Angeles and his B.S., from the United States Military Academy.
